OSCEdays' First Writers Weekend

> Open Call For Participants

[Document] -> [Share] -> [Collaborate]

– A 2 day open and globally connected documentation jam on circular economy solutions –

Good documentation is key for decentralized collaboration and the collective invention and creation of a sustainable circular economy. And good documentation needs its own time and attention. So OSCEdays starts a new and ongoing series of events called: Writers Weekends.

Do you have an interesting solution, project or methodology and always wanted to document it properly – make it Open Source – so others can build on it and engage in collaboration with you? But you never found the time to do it? Here is the best opportunity:

We invite you to the OSCEdays writers weekend. Over the course of 48 hours we will create globally connected through various channels ACTION protocols. ACTION protocols [LINK] are a documentation format. They break down existing solutions into simple step by step guides everyone can follow. People can use them locally – in their local events or outside – and for example I the next global OSCEdays event [LINK CALL]. But you are also free to use other documentation formats (1).

Join us.

(1) You can use this event to create any open documentation of circular economy solutions and share it with the world. It does not have to be in the format of ACTION protocols and it does not have to be on the OSCEdays platform. We are happy about any open documentation! As long as you share the link to your documentation with us – so we can share the link on our platform :-).
